ROW RESULTS IN FATAL SHOOTING

CONVICTED MEN

Oki Okano, Japanese Gambler, Shot Through Head by Fellow Countryman.

Parley G. Butler Declares Bass and Reese Did Not Kill Fred McCabe.

(Special to The Herald-Republic.)
Ogden, Nov. 25.—A dispute arising over a wage placed on a wrestling match between a Japanese and a white man in this city last night, is thought to have been the cause of a murder in the Japanese quarter here at 9 o'clock this morning.

G. Kawahata is being held at the city jail, where he came and gave himself up immediately after the shooting, declaring he had killed his victim in self-defense. Oki Okano, the dead man, thought to have been a Salt Lake gambler of shabby reputation, was found lying on the floor of a Japanese boarding house at 214 Twenty-fourth street, where the shooting occurred, with a bullet wound at the base of his brain. The body is now at Larkin & Sons undertaking parlor awaiting the action of a coroner's jury.

Kawahata Confesses.
Shortly after 9 o'clock Kawahata appeared at the police station and said some one had fired a shot at him. He then produced a revolver, which, upon examination, was found to have been fired but a few minutes before. Three chambers were empty, and two were loaded. The Jap was asked how he came to have the revolver if another man shot at him, and he explained that he had twisted it from the other's hand.

Then he asked that a policeman be sent to the scene of the tragedy. "Man sick," he said, "man very sick—he dead."

After this confession, Kawahata was placed in a cell, while Detectives J. F. Pender and R. H. Chambers hurried to the scene. Little could be learned from other Japanese in the neighborhood, but it is understood Okano was well known by the Salt Lake police and had killed a man in Denver some time ago.

STATE NEWS

ROBERT ANDERSON MUST FACE TRIAL

City Attorney of Provo Held to Answer in the District Court.

PRELIMINARY HEARING

Accused Official Attempts to Shake Hands With Girl in the Case, but Her Mother Interferes.

(Special to The Herald-Republic.)
Provo, Nov. 25.—The case of the state vs. Robert Anderson, city attorney of Provo, charged with improper relations with Annie Phillips, a 16-year-old girl, came up for preliminary hearing today before Justice of the Peace A. A. Noon, Anderson being held to the action of the district court.

County Attorney Jacob Evans prosecuted, and M. M. Warner of Salt Lake represented the defense.

When the case was called at 10 o'clock Mr. Warner asked for a brief postponement in order to examine one of his witnesses. It was disclosed that the witness he wanted to examine was Miss Phillips, who had been subpoenaed by the defense after her arrival in Provo this morning. The prosecution objected strenuously to any interview between Mr. Warner and Miss Phillips. Mr. Warner suggested that Justice Noon might be present, and that understanding the interview was permitted. It, however, lasted only a few minutes, after which the defense announced it would waive examination. This was objected to by the state, and Miss Phillips was placed on the stand.

Girl Testifies.
The girl told of meeting Anderson in Provo some time in April, 1910, she having gone to a dentist's office, where she met Mr. Anderson at the top of the stairs.

She had asked Anderson if he could tell her where the dentist had gone, and this had led to a conversation during which Anderson invited her into his office on the second floor, and had a talk with her. When she went home she took a book from Mr. Anderson's office, which he had loaned her. Their acquaintance became friendly relations, and she visited Salt Lake on July 9 and July 25 with Mr. Anderson. They went to Saltair, and on the first visit missed the return train and stopped at a Salt Lake hotel, occupying the same room. The second time they also occupied the same room at the same hotel.

They registered as "John Adams and wife" of Eureka. She was shown the register and said she believed the signature was in the handwriting of defendant, but could not be certain. The act alleged in the complaint, she testified, occurred in Mr. Anderson's office in this city either in the latter part of July or early in August. The complaint charges August 15.

Regard for Anderson.
On cross-examination she testified that she still felt affection for Anderson; she felt that he had wronged her, but she had given him the opportunity. She would not, if she could help it, do anything to injure him, but she had resented his having because she had made a solemn vow to tell the truth. She stated that she was not actuated by any vindictive feelings at all.

A large number of letters written to the girl by Anderson between August 25 and September 7 were introduced and identified by her. They are the letters some of which were published at the time of Mrs. Anderson's divorce suit. She also identified a statement written by her and given to ex-Sheriff George A. Storrs at Ogden, which she said contained the truth. This statement was not read, but it contains practically the statements to which the girl testified this morning.

Experts Called.
State Bank Examiner C. A. Glasier, as an expert, failed to give it as his opinion that the signature "John Adams and wife" in the hotel register was written by the same person who had written the letters Anderson is alleged to have sent to Miss Phillips, but he said the writing looked much alike. Joseph A. Buttle, assistant cashier of the Provo Commercial & Savings bank, gave it as his opinion that the writing was identical with the signature of Mrs. Phillips, but he said the writing looked much alike. Joseph A. Buttle, assistant cashier of the Provo Commercial & Savings bank, gave it as his opinion that the writing was identical with the signature of Mrs. Phillips, but he said the writing looked much alike.

Manti, Nov. 25.—To work harmoniously together in securing a life-mate for every member, several young men of this city, who as yet have not fallen victims of Cupid's dart, have formed a bachelors' club, with the sole object of shaking the fetters of that sometimes called blissful state. Officers have been elected and what shall be deemed fair and foul in a courtship inscribed in the constitution.

Under this head it is ruled a misdemeanor for a member to take to the double harness without first obtaining the permission and approval of the other members, in consideration of which the club members pledge themselves to place one-tenth of their annual salaries in a pool for wedding presents to each successful candidate submitting the necessary proof that the willing captive of the fairer sex has whispered "yes."

Precautions Taken.
Fred J. Fjeldstad has been unanimously elected grand bachelor-in-chief, with Ernest Madsen first assistant, and Ed Anderson and Cherley Tennant sergeants-at-arms. Chris Anderson, Jr., will act as bachelor janitor and chaplain. This is the only paid office, $27.50 per year being deemed sufficient remuneration for successful guarding the bachelors from unfair advances of eligible maidens. Following a correspondence degree, has been retained as attorney bachelor. His duties will consist of legal advice to the forlorn, on lovers' quarrels, breach-of-promise suits and marriage and divorce laws. He will also maintain a table of alimony rates, and upon the proper showing of any successful member will start a subscription for railroad fare to Reno.

Growing Receptions Given Brave Dog Tax Collector

(Special to The Herald-Republic.)
Ephraim, Nov. 25.—Dogs to the right of him, dogs to the left of him, dogs in front of him barked and growled, but on strode the brave tax collector. He pounded upon front doors and hammered upon back doors and called from over fences, beseeching the people to pay their dog tax. But all to no avail, for while the residents of Ephraim seemed willing enough to own dogs, none seemed anxious to pay for the privilege. Hence the collector was forced to beat a retreat to the city council and ask reinforcements in the form of authority to institute suits to collect.

The city fathers of Ephraim, after listening to the story of their city marshal and dog tax collector, decided that the time had come when tribute must be paid the city for the privilege of owning and keeping within the city limits those domesticated first cousins of the coyote, that bury bones by day and bay at the moon at night.

The council instructing the marshal to immediately institute suits against all owners of dogs within the pale of Ephraim City who failed to promptly pay their dog tax.

The city officials call attention to the fact that in other places it is customary for the dogcatcher to execute all dogs not licensed to be on earth, and it is hinted that there might be some executions unless taxes are paid.
